Sir

Before this can arrive at Brighton I take it for granted an Express will have reach'd your Royal Highness to announce the intelligence, I trust the fortunate intelligence, of the intended meeting between His Majesty & your Royal Highness on Wednesday next. His Majesty's Letter to the Chancellor, as stated to me is full of cordiality & affection. This is a momentous Crisis in your Royal Highness's Life, a crisis which calls for, what I am sure will be bestow'd on it, all the Judgement Penetration & Decision which belong to your Royal Highness's mind. It is been written to me that it is probable that his Majesty means to proceed to measures far beyond domestic reconciliation.

Lord Grenville is in Cornwall. However I judged it best to address a letter to him at Drogheda in order that he may be apprized of your Royal Highness's intentions had his Lordship been accessible which I trust your Royal Highness will approve of.

I shall have the Honor of paying my Duty to your Royal Highness at Busby tomorrow

I am ever your M.P.'s most devoted & faithful serv^t.

R.B. Sheridan
