On the Day Lord George Gordon's Trial is to come on, many very formidable Insurrections will most certainly burst out in different parts of Great-Britain, particularly in London, Edinburgh, and Glasgow, if not happily prevented by your Majesty's Vigilance & Wisdom.

The Planners & Concerters of these intended Insurgencies have secured a Friend in every Company of the Guards, and in almost every Regiment in the Kingdom they have several persons in their Confidence.

A presbyterian parson at Brantwood in Essex hath for some time past been frequently employed in carrying certain secret Dispatches to Harwich, from which port they were carefully transmitted to Necker & Franklyn, via Hollandia.
