Dropmore June 6. 1810

actual complaint yet the weakness remaining is still such as would make the exertion of writing not only very painful but prejudicial to me and I could not think of any longer delaying to express to Your Royal Highness the sentiments with which I am so strongly impressed

I am very much concerned to learn from M^r. Tyrwhitt's letter which I received this morning that the situation of His Royal Highness the Duke of Cumberland is still such as to create much anxiety on His account But I trust that the appearances have since been more favourable

I have the honour to be with the utmost respect and gratitude most dutiful

and devoted servant

The Prince of Wales
