 $\frac{m}{40}$  p. Ten. a. M.

I will immediately obey your Majestys commands and inform Lord Marsfield that you come to the House at half seven past two. It was the General opinion of yr Majestys confidential servants that the speech is considerably improved by the alterations it has received and I am happy to find that opinion confirmed by yr Majestys Judgment. as it is now determined that there shall be separate addresses I am preparing that for the House of Lords.
The answer shall be sent to your Majestys

Majesty tomorrow morning.
