Saturday Dec. 1. 1804.

The Lord Chancellor offers his most humble Duty to your Majesty, & begs Leave to acquaint your Majesty that he has received from his Royal Highness The Prince of Wales an Answer to his Letter, transmitting your Majesty's Communication, which appears to the Chancellor to be founded, in some Degree, upon a Misapprehension of your Majesty's gracious Intentions, and from which perhaps therefore no certain Inference can at present be drawn: but, although the Contents of the Answer are by no means such, as the

The Chancellor thinks might have been expected to your Majesty's gracious Communication, he is still willing to hope that, by the same Temper & Judgement, which Y^r Majesty has manifested on this interesting Subject, the Difficulties, which there is Reason to suppose that some Advisers of the Prince are willing to create, may be surmounted.

Mr Pitt and The Chancellor think that it may save your Majesty Trouble if they should have the Honour of personally waiting upon your propose to be at Windsor to morrow at two o'clock to wait your Majesty's Command.
