

AA

The King having given the utmost Attention to the magnitude of the object he has at Heart, the fixing on proper Persons to Superintend the Education, and to take proper Care of His Dear Grand-Daughter, The Princess Charlotte, is convinced that on the Bench of Bishops, no Man is so well calculated to plan the mode of Education, as the Bishop of Exeter, who in addition to his Exemplary Conduct, Erudition, and having with the greatest assiduity and Affection, attended the Duke of Kent, has the peculiar advantage of being of a very mild disposition, and possessing a most engaging Manner likely to gain the Esteem of any young Person he is required to converse with. To him must be left the choice of the Instructor in Religion, Latin, English History, and the Duty of reading Prayers.

In examining those, who from their Rank, and unimpeached Characters might be thought eligible for the Employment of Governesses, undoubtedly the Names of the Marchioness of Townsend, and the Countesses of Cardigan, Chester and Sylesbury occurred, but from their particular Situations it appears evident that any application to them would not succeed.

His

49
The
an
the
The
cu
an
a
the

His Majesty therefore thinks that, considering the excellent Education and Character, as well as the exemplary attention which She has given to the Education of Her Children, Baroness Howe is the Person best qualified for this great Trust; and the real attachment all the Howe Family have ever manifested towards every Branch of the Royal Family, ensures, should She undertake the Task, that She will fulfill it with Zeal, Diligence, and the utmost Propriety.

The King has with great attention viewed the behaviour the last Summer at Weymouth, and enquired into the Character of M^{rs} Campbell, the Widow of a Colonel in the Army, who died Governor of the Island of Bermudas. She is by birth Irish: Her Name was Kelly, She lived as a Friend with the Lady Strangways the last Summer, and would not have been invited by the Countess of Chester, had She not in every light, been able to stand the severest Scrutiny: and His Majesty thinks She might with great Propriety, be intrusted with the important situation of Sub-Governess: It seems only necessary to mention the Idea of an Assistant Sub-Governess: the Nomination ought His Majesty thinks be left to the Governess, as the Person most interested to find out an assistant Sub-Governess, in every way fit to attend the young Princess in the absence of the Sub-Governess.

AA

49451

His Majesty trusts that on this Plan, the Princess will be surrounded with Persons, who will cultivate Her Mind; furnish it with excellent Principles, and render Her an Honour and Comfort to Her Relations, and a Blessing to the Dominions, over which She may hereafter Preside.

ing
e cation
alified
he Howe
ch of
the nd the
the red nel in dow.
d as
mer,
of
and
She
the only Governess:
As

1814
copy George's handwriting by the Duke of Devon his correspondence with the Duke during the summer of 1805