My Dear Mother - I delay writing to you by the return of the paper the delay with which I have received & read your kind letter letter, so how infinitely more I tried the instant I came immediately from you & that if it had been conveyed through any other channel - I should have been in time to Windsor & having your letter before me I am now commanded - I have I will write to you as soon I best thanks for your communication, & beg, first to put a stop to the pleasure I receive from it - As to myself I think

I need hardly add that I shall await your further orders & communication with the incoppliance I be most happy to obey them, feeling sure that as the term is near, I need not (course don't with what is right & proper) you will do towards me the promise of serving I shall continue in full love till you displease with it — That you should be again suffering, gives me the sincerest concern, & that it should occur at a moment when we are likely to get to there, be well as to be so much engaged with the business is most distressing, but I trust in God I may very shortly have the satisfaction of leaving you one more, quite recovered.
