Little Warwick Street
Friday Evening

Gen. Conway presents his most humble Duty to his Majesty: as there was no Division & scarce any direct Debate on the Questions propos'd he did not at first think of troubling his M^{ty}. - but as this was a day of some Expectation he thought his M^{ty}. might possibly not be displeas'd to hear how it pass'd.

Mr. Gouvenille made a faint attempt to oppose the bringing the Papers but was little supported, & when the Question was put there were scarce two voices Dissentient. Mr. Gouvenille & myself had said each of any explanation on the Differences of opinion in the Colours; but S^r. J. having clearly declar'd it Mr. Gouvenille then explain'd the grounds upon which it proceeded. - It was resolv'd to address his M^{ty}. for the Papers, & the Committee was put off for a Fortnight.

The Speakers were as within. - on the first Question. All except Mr. Doubledwell who also speaks on the 2^d Question for Printing the Papers of L'Abbe de Lamoignon, both against it.
