Queens House March 6th 1767.

Lieutenant General Conway, I am pleased tho not surpris'd that this Day has pass'd without Opposition having dare'd to Divide the House; I flatter myself that the late Altercation in the Cabinet will also be on all sides forgot as I am thoroughly convinced the Advantage of the Station is by all my Ministers equally sought for, & that on Cool reflection it will appear that the difference related only as to the Mode, not Matter under deliberation.
