Lord Chatham most humbly begs Leave to lay Himself at the King's Feet, and wants Words to convey to his Majesty, his Duty, Submission, and Devotion; and how deeply he is penetrated with the exceeding Condescension, and Transcending Goodness of his Majesty.

The Appearance of returning Reason and Sobriety in the House of Commons is, solely owing to his Majesty's Well known Magnanimity, and Wisdom, in the Present great Crisis. The Preposterous Union of Clashing Factions will not, till Things change their Nature, subsist and finally Overbear the honest Sense of the Nation, dutifully attach'd to a most Benignant Sovereign, pursuing nothing but the Welfare and Happiness of His People.

In Obedience to His Majesty's most gracious Commands,

Lord Chatham presumes to mention his own Health, which mends, tho' slowly. He counts every Hour till he is able to attend His Majesty's most gracious Presence.
