

M<sup>r</sup>. Dundas

1st June 1793

7205

Whitehall. 1st June 1793

<sup>m</sup>
39 N. 6. P. M.

Mr Dundas uncertain whether the Papers will be returned from the Printing office does not come humbly to inform His Majesty the Island of Tobago was captured on the 14th April by M. General Cuyler and

Admiral Sir John Laforey

Mr Pitt.

June 6. 1743

7206

Mr Pitt finding that he shall not be able to have the honor of attending your Majesty tomorrow, takes the liberty of acquainting your Majesty, that the Duke of Devonshire has in the handsomest manner expressed his desire not to interfere with the Gratification of Lord Carlisle's Wishes, respecting the Blue Ribband. Mr Pitt has communicated the Circumstances to Lord Carlisle, or whom such a mark of your Majesty's favor seems likely to make the fullest Impression. Mr Pitt presumes to trouble your Majesty on this occasion, thinking your Majesty may judge it right to fix a time for the Chapter before the Season is much more advanced.

I own my self

Thursday June 6th 1793

The Duke of York
7th June 1793

7207

Camp before Valenciennes June 7. 1793

Sir

As I was beginning my letter to Your Majesty, Major Crawford arrived and delivered to me Your most gracious Letter of the 5th. Permit me Sir to return Your Majesty my most humble thanks for it, and to express how happy Your Majesty's approbation of my conduct hitherto, makes me.

I shall not fail writing tomorrow morning, to the Prince of Cobourg, and acquainting him with Your Majesty's gracious message, and Your Majesty's approbation of my commanding the Siege of Valenciennes,

Every exertion has been made in our power in order to make the necessary preparations for beginning the Siege, but as unluckily the Ammunition necessary for the Guns to be employed in the first parallel was sent in the third Artillery Convoy, it will be impossible to begin the first parallel before the night of the 9th to the 10th, or of the 10th to the 11th, and as We shall then have one hundred and eighty two pieces of Battery cannon to play upon the Town at once, and that they have 10

Casemets, it is almost impossible that they can stand out many days
The Enemy have made frequent little Sorties though none of any consequence but have regularly thrown out a number of infamous hand bills, which have been picked up by the Soldiers and brought to their Officers, I am happy to inform Your Majesty that they have not had the least effect upon them, as Your Majesty may be curious to read one of them, I have the honor to enclose one.

I likewise transmit to Your Majesty a very exact plan of the Battle of Famas, which I had drawn upon the spot, and which will give Your Majesty a very thorough idea of the ground, It likewise contains a small part of the Works of Malouvennes and particularly the Horn Work, before which the French are to be opposed.

Tomorrow afternoon We are to alter the disposition of the Troops and to approach the Camp much nearer the Town,

The remark Your Majesty is pleased to make concerning the want of strength of the Dulak at Poursing near Lisle has already unfortunately proved too true, the ~~present~~ with which they retired from Curas, with three Battalions

The Duke of York
of June 1793

7207 (2)

before an enemy who the next day was driven back by thirty Austrian regiment Chapeaux and a Squadron of Muffens, and the cowardly Brance in which they deserted the ~~front~~ of Mence and since that a post which they had to cover the communication from Louvain to Tournay, only upon the approach of a patrol of the Enemy's Cavalry, has caused the most serious alarm to the Prince of Cobourg and to all the Troops who are serving in this part, and particularly to me, <sup>the</sup> whose communication with Brabant is for every reason of so much consequence. The Alarm of the Dutch appears to persuade them all from the Hereditary Brance to the present of the all, and they are thoroughly convinced that after driving them out of Brabant, the French will invade Holland again.
It is impossible to denigrate the conduct of the Prince of Cobourg as to their conduct, but he has found himself obliged, ~~for~~ consent to their retiring from Tournay and drawing all their forces into Austrian Brabant, as otherwise they would in all probability have gone quite away. In consequence of this arrangement, the Prussians are to take up a position between Bouvines and Liège in order to cover Tournay, and to keep up the communication with the Dutch, and the Prince of Cobourg has already detached some Troops to occupy the Prussian

Posts at Orkes and Marschevies

It now remains to be seen whether the Dutch with seven thousand men can defend Austrian Flanders against the French which till now has been always thought perfectly well guarded with about four thousand men.

The misfortune with the Dutch is, that they have not a single Officer of any rank whatsoever who has the least idea of the duty, and that the two Princes of Orange who command them have of possible less idea of the Military than the rest of their Officers and at the same time have so good an opinion of themselves and of their Troops, that they think themselves above following any advice which could be given them, I am therefore very much afraid that unless some means could be found out in a civil manner to send the two Princes back again and to disperse their Dutch Corps among the other Troops little or no advantage can ever be derived from them.

With regard to Ostende, I have repeatedly myself and through the Prince of Cobourgh entreated the Prince of Orange to send a Garrison there and to take such precautions as would secure the place, but the Princes fears never would allow him to detach a single man, I have therefore till now been obliged to leave them the thirty seventh Regiment, Upon the first news of the Evacuation of Furnes Sir James Murray was so good as to go over to see in what State Ostende is, and I sent with him Captain Sutherland of the Engineers, by their report to me Ostende is perfectly well covered of Furnes and Newport are occupied and indeed at the time that I was at Bruyes, Colonel Myles who commands the Austrian advanced Corps which till now has been posted at Ipres, repeatedly told me that of the last fifty men at Furnes and two hundred at Newport it would be totally impossible for the Enemy ever to make any attempt upon Ostende, however to make as sure as I can of that place I have ordered General Mearns to remain there at present with the two Squadrons of the 3<sup>d</sup> Dragoon Guards the 37th Regiment and the Corps of French Emigrants The rest of the Cavalry are ordered to join me as soon as possible

I have the honor to be Sir

Your Majesty's

Most Obedient Son and Subject

Frederick

The Duke of York
11th June 1793

7209

Camp before Valenciennes June 11 1793

Sir

I have the Honor to acknowledge the receipt of Your Majesty's very gracious Letter of the 7th Instant I only received yesterday owing to Lieutenant Colonel Dundas's unfortunate accident.

Custine's army is at present acting totally upon the defensive and by the last account I received is intrenching itself near Cambrai. The Capitaine of the Madelaine near Lille made another attempt to attack the Dutch yesterday morning at Sarony, but luckily the Dutch Troops had wanted the day before to take up a position near Menin, and the place was occupied by the Austrians who defended themselves very well, till the Prussians came to their assistance, and getting behind the French cut them all to pieces and pursued them close to Lille.

I delivered myself to Your Majesty's very gracious Inpage to the Prince of Cobourg, who desired

Due to express to Your Majesty how much I am affected by Your Goodness and Consideration.

We shall open the Breches before Valenciennes the day after tomorrow, the whole Artillery and Ammunition is arrived, there are one hundred and eighty pieces of Battering Cannon and Mortars, Major Comper says he never saw such fine Artillery. I do not mean to summon the Town till all the Batteries are ready to fire, which will be at latest on Saturday and I shall then give them two hours to consider should they resolve to stand the Siege, the Arrangements are made in such a manner that the fire will be kept up incessantly day and night so that the Enemy will not have an instant's quiet.

I have the Honor to be

Sir

Your Majesty's

Most Obedient Son
and Subject

Frederick

Sir Wm. Dawrett

June 12. 1793

7210

Adj. Gen. <sup>l</sup> Office, 12th June, 1793.

Your Majesty's Adj. General, having just receiv'd from His Royal Highness, Prince Edward, the enclod'd circumstantial detail of His Royal Highness's proceedings, on the subject of the con-spiracy, lately discover'd in the Royal Fugitives, He thinks it his duty, to lay the same before your Majesty.

Lord Grenville
Whitehall th 13 June 1793.

7211

Whitehall June 13. 1793. 4 P.M.

Lord Grenville has the honour respectfully to submit to Your Majesty the draft of an answer from Your Majesty to the letter of the Emperor of Russia which he would send tomorrow by a messenger to accompany Count Woronzow's Courier if Your Majesty should should be graciously pleased to approve of it.

Lord Grenville takes the liberty to add that he has this morning seen papers from Paris of as late a date as the sixth, which confirm the accounts before received of Marat having raised an insurrection in Paris, in consequence of which about twenty of the Brissotine party in the National Convention were arrested together with Claviere & Le Brun. It appears that measures were to be taken to bring them to trial. A Revolt had broke out in Languedoc & the Army of the Convention there had been defeated.

Duke of York

7212

Camp before Palencuenas June 14 1793

Sir

I am exceedingly happy to be able to acquaint Your Majesty that We opened the first Batail last night and that We were so fortunate as totally to escape the notice of the Enemy during the whole night so that the Men were enabled to sink the Trenches so very deep that they were compleatly under cover by Day Break We have four thousand five hundred Soldiers at Work in the Trenches who are relieved every twelve Hours, and three thousand to cover them, who are relieved every evening. During the whole time I was in the Trenches which was till between three and four o'clock this morning, the Enemy fired only few random Shots, they have however a good deal since six o'clock, According to the report I received at eleven o'clock there was not one single Man killed or wounded on our side, but I understand that since then has been one Dutchman killed and two wounded and two Negroes wounded, which considering the number of workmen, and that they are within ten hundred Yards of the Place is nothing.

I summoned the Court at eleven o'clock today and have received the most insolent Answer both from the Commandant and the Municipality. I immediately ordered a Mortar Battery which is erected at St. Paul's to begin to fire upon the Court and at this instant the fire from our Battery is very severe, I hope tomorrow evening to open all the Batteries upon the first Parallel which will consist of forty eight <sup>lb.</sup> and twenty four pounders, besides two Batteries of 12 <sup>lb.</sup> which are to fire sid shot into the Court.

The Dutch have not shown to take up the position proposed to them by the Council of Colony, they have however all passed the days and have at present taken part with their left to Mexico, so that, unless indeed

Duke of York

7212 (2)

they take flight and make one of their principal retreats they actually cover the whole of Ansbach (Pleisers), and if they will fight me in force enough to resist any thing which can be brought against them,

I have the honor to be Sir

Your Majesty's

Obedient Son
and Subject

Frederick

The Duke of York
1st June 1793

Henry Dundas

7213

Whitehall 18 June 1793  $\frac{6}{4}$  h. M.

Mr Dundas humbly begs leave to inform your Ma: jesty that as there must be a House of Commons required to meet tomorrow it would not be suitable to run the Risk of His 2187 safely coming down in despite any uncertainty of the part of a House or any thing arising to detain it. There being a Drawing Room on Thursday, it is humbly submitted that Friday may be the best

Henry Dundas

7213 (2)

day to sea for the Prorogation, but upon that His Majestys Commands can be received tomorrow.

H. D. Dundas
19th June 1793

Duke of York

7214

Camp before Valenceiras June 18. 1793

Sir

I am very happy to have the Honor of acquainting Your Majesty that this afternoon We have opened all our Batteries on the first Parallel, they are four in number, their fire is prodigious, and the arrangements are taken in such a manner, that they are never to cease firing either day or night, In the Day they are to fire upon the Works, and in the night upon the Town. The Barrica for the Communications to the second Parallel are in a better ready, and the second Parallel is to be begun tomorrow night, The Enemy has kept up a pretty severe fire since the Day we opened the Batteries but has done us very little mischief as I do not think that in the whole Army under my command there are twenty three killed and wounded of whom there are only two English killed and three so severely wounded as to be carried to the General Hospital of the Hanoverians there is only one killed and four wounded

The Enemy had a kind of a Sortie yesterday this afternoon with about four Hundred men who came forward in a very irregular way, but they were repulsed with a discharge of grape shot from two batteries of Cannon, and a Volley of small Arms which drove them out away as fast as they could back into the town, leaving four and twenty dead upon the spot, besides the wounded, whom they carried off with them

Monsieur de Couston has been making different Movements with the advanced Corps

Duke of York

7214 (2)

of this Army as if he intended to attack us but he has suddenly had a retreat and join the main Army which is encamped between Ambrus and Douai in a very strong position which he has been fortifying very much, he is drawing as large a force together as possible, but the Prince of Coburg told me this evening that according to the intelligence he had received, his men to desert as fast as they can.

I have the Honor to be

Sir

Your Majesty's

Most Obedient Son
and Subject

Frederick

The Duke of York
18th June 1793

Lord Bute

June 20 . 1793

7215

Most Gracious Sir

Fearing that a report in circulation might reach your Majesty of my having largely contributed to a most singular subscription, and which must appear extraordinary in a person whom your Majesty has so distinguished by your Royal protection

I humbly beg leave to say that that consideration most of all occasioned my taking no notice of the several applications I received on the subject.
A certain impression that your Majesty neither approves of granting audiences, nor the being plagued with letters, deterred me about a fortnight ago from using that freedom, what I was, otherwise, very much tempted to do, having it then in my power to lay before you the rise, the progress, and the secret views of the whole of this begging affair. I was likewise acquainted with the schemes and pretensions of those who

Lord Bute

June 20 . 1793

7215 (2)

are lately come over to government. It was even proposed to me to make one of the party, if such it can be termed, to which I answered that I belonged to the King alone, whose commands I should implicitly obey. Indeed were I not bound to do so by every tie of duty and gratitude, I have been so married, so crippled in my politics that the very name of party makes me shudder.
In truth my life has proved a series of untoward events. I set out by being robbed of my just rights through a forced alteration of my settlement, as your Majesty well knows. The word circumstance of the last year added another blow.

and in endeavoring to set matters right by the wealthy alliance of my son, I bury both my name, and my title. Not that I am particularly pledged to my title; on the contrary I think an impopularity hangs round it as irrecoverable as the Luton mortgage: still a man naturally wishes that his descendants should in preference derive their honors from himself. at the same time I have attained my present period of life to little purpose if I have not learn't the deceit of hopes and expectations; and if I am not prepared to meet with fortitude whatever rubs may await me. Sanguine hope is the pleasing companion of youth; a middle age sees through the illusion; whilst the more advanced again, happily for itself, loses all recollection. One ambition I shall ever retain; it can only cease with my life; the being esteemed by your Majesty for what I am from the bottom of my heart — devoted and attached to your Royal Person, with zeal, warmth, and affection. I am, Sir, your Majesty's most dutiful Subject Will. Sturt

20. June. 1793. Bute.

Wm. Pitt

June 20 1793

7217

Mr Pitt humbly begs leave to acquaint Your Majesty, that in consequence of Your Majesty's Permission he proposed to Lord Belgrave a seat at the India Board as a Privy Counsellor, which he is happy to accept. - Mr Pitt has also mentioned to Lord Comtown that he understood Your Majesty would approve of the arrangement immediately taking place respecting the Office which he now holds, and both his Wife and Lord Stoppards may easily be moved tomorrow. Mr J. H. takes the Liberty of adding that Lord Brayham has expressed a Wish, as other Persons in a similar Situation to his are to be admitted to the Privy Council, to receive the same honor, with the View of attending at the Board of Trade, which he may very

Wm. Pitt

June 20 1793

7217 (2)

will do consistently with the Attendance at the Treasury; and it will be very satisfactory if your Majesty should see no particular Objection to gratify him in this request.

Yours most Obedient Servant.

Thursday Night. June 20th 1793

Ld. Heshuorland

June 20 1793

7218

Sir

J. Ashurst

June 20 1793

I venture to intrude upon Your Majesty with my most dutiful Thanks for the high Honour

20 7 Your Majesty has been graciously pleas'd to confer upon me, most truly honourable as from thence I presume to indulge the pleasing reflection that my humble Services in the situation in which your Majesty's Goodness has plac'd me have met with your approbation - I trust this Mark of your Majesty's Confidence will add Weight to my exertions in your Service and by enabling me to execute your Majesty's Commands permit me to hope for a continuance of your Majesty's Favor,

I have

Ld. Westmorland

June 20 1793

7218 (2)

The honor to be with the most profound Respect

Your Majesty's

Most Obedient

& Faithful

Subject and Servant

Westmorland

Lord Newmouldland,
Dutton Bath 20 June 1793

Duke of York

7219

Camp before Valenciennes June 21 1793

Sir

I have the Honor to acknowledge the receipt of Your Majesty's very gracious Letter of the 18th which was delivered to me this afternoon.

The violent rains which fell on Wednesday and yesterday have some what delayed our works, The second Parallel however is so much forward now that the Batteries will be begun to night and finished tomorrow night. Our Batteries in the first Parallel have already so far overcome the Enemy's fire that they have fired very little today and that they have drawn their Guns out of the Horn Work against which our main attack is directed. We gave them no rest during the day the Batteries are employed in firing against the works and in dismounting the Enemy's Guns, and during the night they throw shells and red hot shot into the Town when they have each night produced a very large fire.

It seems to be the General Opinion of the Austrians that the Siege is already in the greatest distress, and that it will surrender as soon as the second Parallel is completed, I have mentioned this as an opinion which is only founded on conjecture.

As however from every thing which we can judge the Siege has not held out many days after the Batteries of the second Parallel are completed, I thought it right to remind the Prince of Cologne of the plans for the rest of the Campaign which were proposed at the Conference at Antwerp, and approved of by Your Majesty by which as soon as Valenciennes was taken I was to march into Cleves and hence to Dunkirk, and I therefore sent by Sir James Murray <sup>last</sup> ~~the~~ <sup>morning</sup> to the Prince of Cologne's Head Quarters to mention this to Prince Rodolphe and Prince Reuss, who are at present at the Head of the Quarter Master General's Staff, and are particularly consulted in all such arrangements and plans, and I am very happy to inform Your Majesty, that the Prince of Hesse has given the most positive assurances of giving every assistance

Duke of York

7219 (2)

in forwarding the plans proposed

I feel in the strongest manner Your Majesty's very gracious and affectionate hints concerning the risk I may run in action, though I must that I never have improperly shunk from any danger, yet I see assured Your Majesty, I never have wantonly exposed myself, whenever I thought that the service could be carried on equally well without it

I have the honor to be,

Sir

Your Majesty's

Most Obedient Son
and Subject

P.S. I have the honor to enclose to Your Majesty the copy of a letter which I received two days ago from the Emperor

Frederick

[Faint, illegible handwriting on a piece of aged paper, possibly a letter or document fragment.]

*The Duke of York
21st June 1793*

The Empress
the Duke
of York

Enclosure

7220

Copie

June 3 1793

Monsieur mon frere et cousin! Je ne veux laisser retourner le Porteur de l'heureuse nouvelle de la victoire du 23 May sans feliciter Votre Altesse Royale de la grande et decisive part qu'Elle a eue aux succes de cette journée, de même qu'à tous ceux, qui se sont succédés depuis la reunion des valeureuses troupes de Sa Majesté Britanique aux miennes. Ses Brillants exploits qui marquent le debut de Votre Altesse Royale dans la carrière de la gloire, Lui donnent des droits essentiels à la reconnaissance de tous les Souverains pour la cause universelle desquels Elle combat, mais particulièrement à la mienne: non seulement en raison de l'intérêt direct qui m'y attache, mais

Y Eu

surtout aussi par ce qu'ils m'offrent des gages précieux de l'amitié du Roi votre Père, qui fera constamment un des plus chers objets de mes vœux et de mes soins.
Les sentimens personnels les plus intimes se réunissent ainsi à ceux de la haute estime avec laquelle je serai toute ma vie

Monsieur mon frere et cousin

Votre bien affectionné frere et cousin

(signé) François

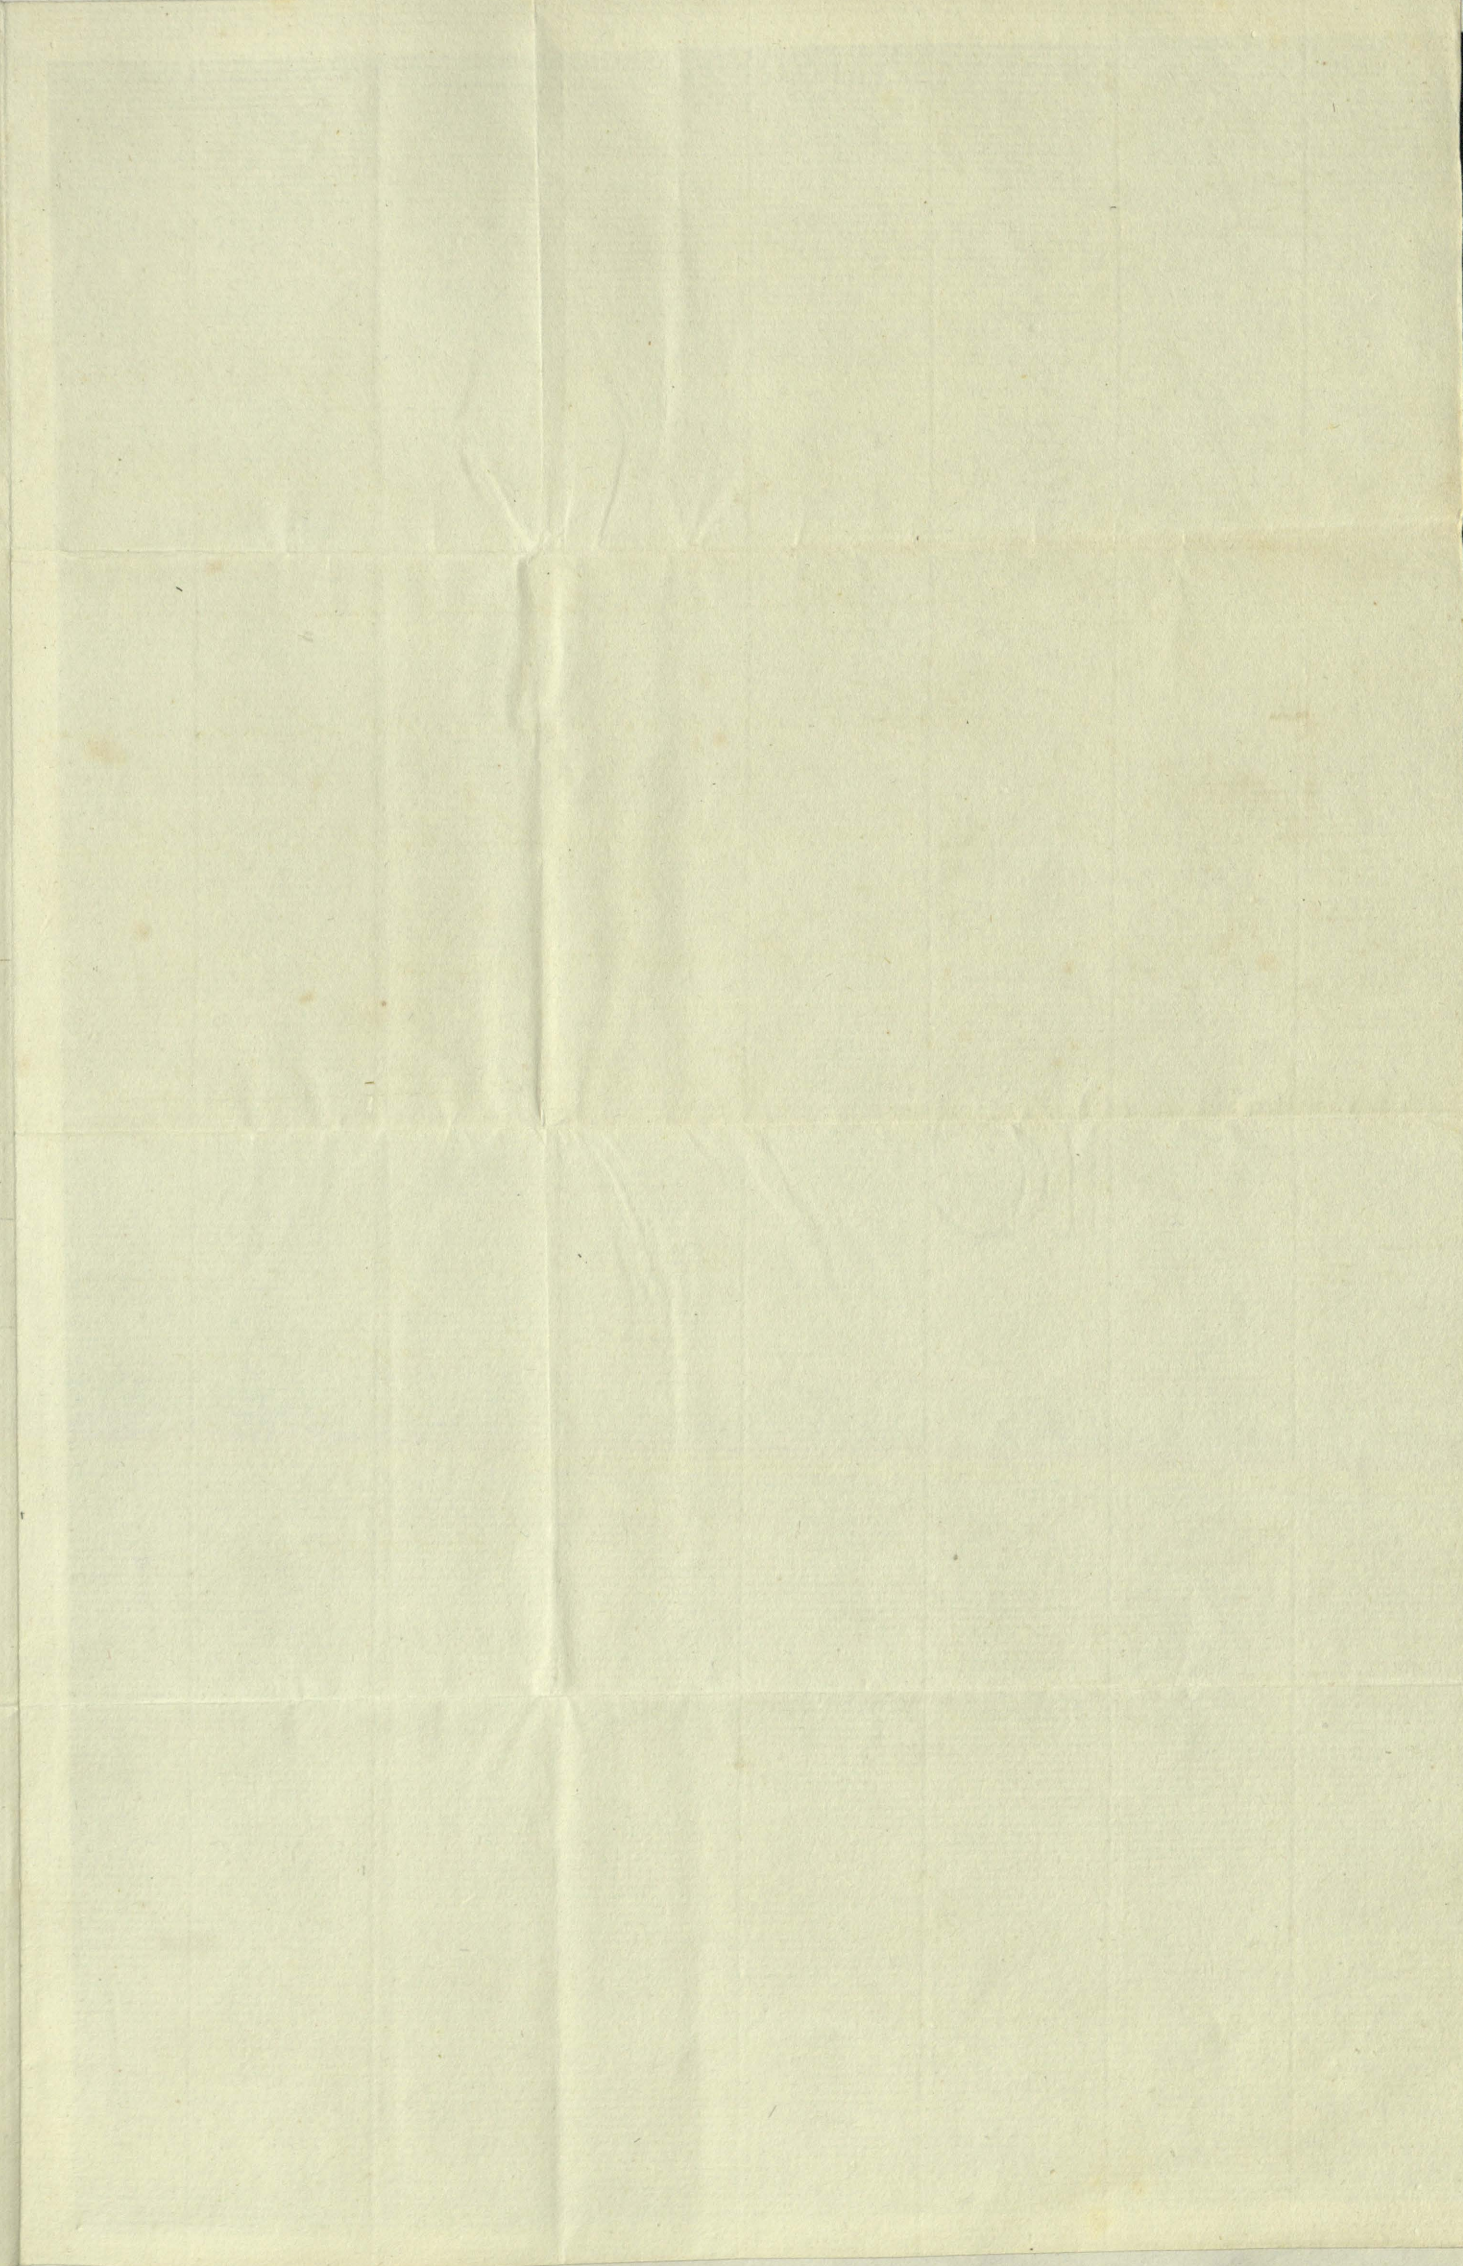

Vienne ce 3 juin

1793

Enclosure

June 3 1793

From the Emperor to G. G. G. Duke of York. dated Vienna
June 3. 1790

M<sup>r</sup> Dundas,
Whitehall 23<sup>d</sup> June 7221

Whitehall 23<sup>d</sup> June 3 o'clock
p. m.

Mr Dundas humbly transmits to His Majesty the accompanying Paper of Intelligence just received from The India House. There seems no reason to doubt the authenticity of the information, but Mr Dundas has so recently received a check for Credul ity that He will henceforward suppose the possibility of Error till the Intelligence comes from the Proper authentic Quarter

Duke of York

7222

Camp before Valenciennes June 25 1793

Sir

Permit me to return Your Majesty my most humble thanks for Your very gracious Letter of the 21 which I received yesterday morning, and by which I am very happy to find that Your Majesty approves of the summons I sent to the Town of Valenciennes.

The Batteries of the Second Parallel which were to have been opened on Sunday, will not be compleatly ready till tonight, on account of the severe rains which We have had and which have rendered the Communications so exceedingly bad that it has been almost impossible to convey the twenty four Cannon and Mortars into the Batteries, We shall however tomorrow morning open one Hundred and forty eight Pieces of Bombardment Cannon upon the Enemy, which according to the opinion of the Engineers and Artillery Officers must induce the Town to surrender, However as no implicit dependence can be put upon it the Siege is to be begun tomorrow night in order to advance to the third Parallel. These Deserters have found means to escape out of the Town, who all agree in saying that the Inhabitants are exceedingly anxious to be rendered but are hindered by the Governor and the Commissioners of the Convention. That the Three Battalions of the Princes of Orange desire to be rendered, and that it is the Battalions of Volunteers alone who as yet stand out, Sir James Murray encloses a copy of a Proclamation which has been published by the Governor of the Town, and which was brought out by one of the Deserters, <sup>and</sup> which clearly shews the general sentiments of the Inhabitants. We have continued to be equally fortunate in the number of Persons killed and wounded since I had the Honor of writing last to Your Majesty as the British have only had one Man killed and four wounded and the Reservoirs are killed and six wounded.

I received yesterday a piece of Intelligence which

Dutle of York

4222 (2)

I am every season to believe, what is that Currier has arrested at Dunes the Day before yesterday and sent off a Prisoner to Paris to be tried before the National Convention as a Traitor.

As it is known that Morda is his bitterest Enemy, there can be but very little doubt that the Guillotine will be his fate As this is the only Officer, though a very bad one in whom the Soldiers have any confidence, this execution will have a great effect in our favor.

Yesterday the Prince of Cobourg called upon me when I took an opportunity to put him in mind of the Proposition he had made, that if Your Majesty's Troops assisted in the Siege of Valenciennes, that he would give every assistance in his power, towards the taking of Dunkirk, and such places as might be wished by Your Majesty in French Flanders, to which he answered he, that he felt fully Your Majesty's goodness in the assistance which has hitherto been given to him, and that I might depend upon this fullfilling exactly and in the best manner possible His engagement.

I have the Honour to be

Sir

Your Majesty's

Most Obedient Son
and Subject

Frederick

The Duke of York
25th June 1793

Disposition of the Combined Armies divided into Columns.

- 1st Small Column — { Six Squadrons of Esterhazy.
Six Do of Karaczay - Light Cavalry
Two Do of Kayser
- 2nd Small Column — { Two Battalions of Staray
Two Do of Kahlenberg.
- 3rd Small Column — { Two Battalions of Hohenlohe
Two Do of Stuart.
- 1st Large Column Left:
A - Subdivided into four Small Columns.
- 4th Small Column — { Reserve of Artillery - consist of Eight 18 lbs - sixteen 12 lbs - Five 6 in. Howitzers - seven 5 1/2 Inch Do - two light 6 lbs and two 5 1/2 in. Howitzers
- 5th Small Column — { Six Squadrons of Nassau Cuirassiers -
The Bridges & Pontoons
- 6th Small Column — { Eight Battalions of Infantry viz - Four Batt. of the Brigade of Guards - The 1st and 2<sup>d</sup> Battalions of Han: Grenadiers and the two Batt. of Hannoverian Guards.
- 7th Small Column — { Ten Squadrons of British and Hanoverian Cavalry - viz. The Six Squadrons of English Light Dragoons and the four Squadrons of Han: Light Dragoons - with The Horse Artillery attached to them
- 8th Small Column — Six Squadrons. Barco Hussars
- 9th Small Column — { Three Battalions of Grenadiers one Battalion of Guards
- 2nd Large 3rd Small Column — Reserve of Artillery and Pontoons.

Column left.
B - Subdivided
into five small
Columns

1st Small Column

Light Battalions of British and Hannoverian Infantry viz - The flank Battalion of Line. - The 1st and 53rd Regiments Two Battalions of the Fourth Han.
Two Battalions of the Tenth and one Battalion of Grenadiers.

2nd Small Column

Six Squadrons of British and Hannoverian Cavalry - viz - Horse Guards Regt. de Corps &
The 2nd of Horse

3rd Small Column

1 Batt. of Spleny.
1 D<sup>o</sup> of Jor. Coleredo.

4th Small Column

2 Squadrons of Esterhazy Hussars.

3rd Column left.
C - Subdivided
into four small Columns - on the right

1st Small Column

4 Squadrons of British & Hann. overian Cavalry - viz - The fifth and seventh regt. of Dragoons

2nd Small Column

1 Battalion of Beauclieu.
2 Pieces of 12th Cannon, and 2 Battalions of British & Hann. overian Infantry - viz Two Batt. of the 5th Regiment.

3rd Small Column

1 Batt. of Teutschmeister 1 D<sup>o</sup> of the Archduke Charles.

4th Column.
Left D. Subdivided into three small Columns on the Left.

1st Small Column

2 Squadrons of Houlan
4 D<sup>o</sup> of Barco Hussars 6 D<sup>o</sup> of Gerschwitz - Cuirassiers

2nd Small Column

2 Pieces of 12th Cannon.
14 Pieces of Horse Artillery - 6th.
2. Seven Inch. Howitzers.

Lord Grenville
June 27. 1793

7224

Whitehall June 27. 1793.

3/4 p. 1. P.M.

Lord Grenville humbly submits for Your Majesty's signature the letter of credence to the Duke of Wurtemberg, for Lord Beauchamp.