Dr. Turbot died.)

My dear Mother

Adina was just writing to you when I received your second note of enquiring after Andrew & thought she had given you a full account of her yet I can not let so kind a note remain unanswered & am desired by Andrew to express with the true most affectionate love how much she feels your kindness to her not only upon this occasion but from the time of her birth first of William as well as of Sutton give us hopes she is going on better to day, but the attack is from from being enquired yet need in addition to day how yet one of her kind lengths I am not willing will we have persuaded them to obey to Sir Pauline's opinion himself & she has promised to conform & take what he has ordered her, so I take in a word that additional anxiety will be of use truly I am your obedient servant
