Nov<sup>r</sup> the 17 Windsor

My dear Brother In the first place I hope is better the illness is over & he has been only great sickness to complain of - but it has been a very violent attack for some time - We went to town on Sunday August & me to see the plagues - and I was delighted to find her in perfect health & I hope Alfred who has been her nurse is. She is quite recovered her strength & all the fatigue of the journey

I had a very long & interesting conversation alone with her on the subject of William's children & I think you would have been highly pleased with all the views & facts on that subject - I explained upon almost every point you asked all you had done for them & all of which she appeared to understand & told me that she intended the first opportunity that offered to

[1819]

Speak openly to you & tell you how the intended to act & what the proposed along - but of course this can not take place before William therefore the shall write you an offer to you as the first time. The one you must likely will be with William - Any offer on the part of proposition of forty together the offer of his attention to be as my grand & the share of be to use with the great respect & regard & opened me nothing and he was comfortable than his Home as she was a domestic and the best tempered creature I pitied before me William and And & navarro in my regard & all be read in the subject of Richard just what you could have wished

In regard to Harmon my little paper but that he used adoption was much blamed that he did not think the of

 but that she thought
 too much of her own
 he doubts it though
 & all attentions of sending to his of & William

& the of both must end of them way to say they never could
 to them & and the the
 ever seen — on the subject of Politics William is as right as possible — I have
 that upon substantive writing to the Duke to say he wished me to know see with the Duke to
