My Dearest Mary,

The Accounts which you send to me & those which Mrs Amelia herself sends me, appear to me more satisfactory, and such as confirm my anxious hopes that a gradual Amendment is taking Place. What you observe however in regard to the Queen in the Spleen, still gives me great concern and I shall be impatient to learn after Doctor Coxe's Arrival at Weymouth, that he has been able to find some more effectual means of relieving it than have been hitherto adopted. I entirely approve of your having sent for Mrs Crisp to relieve Lady George Murray during her Indisposition. Your Description of Captain Nelson interested me not a little.

Believe me to be

Yours
 George
