

May every dear dear Son George - Heaven & Earth bless you for your descent of water & have rejoiced shall I be if I really do so your dear face to immence, but I distrust of you to come on with it if you have the smallest fear of catching cold that you will defer it till next week or I assure you it will make me wretched if I think you coming to me will make you ill - Pray as you find me very chine to be one first that I may make sure of seeing you in comfort - & at one o'clock will be a favour here -
 - You tell me that have been swore in youth its with a rich wife. How sorry I am in this instance that I have the gift of second sight as I said to myself yesterday morning at Chelms I was afraid from this length he was going to be ill - Pray with a thousand hundred times from me the hills have joined I am to have it, & that I wish I was what I was not of them I fly & move him myself - What ever I say in return for the thing? Well I was never gratified with the design there can be des.
 - wish; nothing indeed can or shall separate us at least in my heart tells me for believe me you tell them the greatest part of it, & I hope my constant will now be such as to merit the real kindness you show me - I shall I think make you sure when an event by di. taking the particulars of a visit I then say and from of account; you know what a obscure she is of the D. & I you have my opinion decidedly; she said nothing; but had reason to have sufficed had not been a little more when the D. of York comes in - I cannot be shyly shy when such a subject & she asked me you have surely & steadily my opinion

- I'd bless you; my account is very & the information has got down down in that I am not successful
- The surge that I have been quite satisfied at the fact, also my friends have been making all day to find a convenient lodging for Cochran at the Institution - I shall post! Best wishes

Yours ever Affly

Sally

Wednesday
6. Clock - 31 March 1805