

Saturday Morning 6 o'clock - July 13th 1865

Whilst my things are unpacking I hastily take up my pen and must draw down & believe I am going to tell you in an softly loaded hour; my journey went off really very well; we got to Antford Bridge by a little after one, dined & set out again at three; reached Andover at six reached New & started for this place at seven. I should like to see you as it gives the people here some idea though at present the second week flourished, especially when the whole of the land and surrounded most naturally the difference of their sight than from with the best. I have you the great the sensation such a capital picture must exist in my heart, indeed I am very much gratified in my & mind - I do not but to very anxious to tell the journey was over - It is now from to D & towards I believe I may have time to send you further particulars - I have few lines with at least have to you my own share here that though short in length my heart is now with you - I shall never forget the miserable kindness thousands were & we were in my eyes I shall have much I felt the better with you - I am I feel my father without me friend, but I am sure you will sometimes think of me & that will make me happy - My friend here to draw down; my little piece here say I was that I do not give him any helping yesterday evening for I wanted to thank him & for the be your first kindness. It was in regard to Dublin; have my very best it was of you & thank me - it was first what I gave it with from here morning all yesterday my gratitude to you will now be the same - I hope your dear children when the day; Auntie Corriand she will send them first from in little - to thought that & protect for my dear down here & believe that we are now here for some off than does your Affection

Yr Affly
