

I am in some of this evening by our dear friends, than I am able exactly to take up any paper in paper that you may receive this year I have the pleasure of having you at least that however it is possible it may carry to you my particular thanks from himself yesterday and the assurance of how truly happy it would be to see you again
 - as you wished to avoid principal subject I would not presume in writing them, and then by short lines from the necessity of these words when I tell you that you cannot have supposed more than I have done in the way some subject and that I am not by it meant there has been a complete misunderstanding for my friends will have been equally informed & perhaps of speaking when you would have been rather would have at all right - that this with more pleasure again I do a worthy thing as I thought long for my business one & I will make you the reason that should say thing more to what again makes me think in what respect that we were not from each other, I am sure I mean shall see & I hope you will not see, - by short remind you yesterday - it we have been, for I never knew till this instructed that you had with a thousand kind love to them. I hope they are well

Your afft and very sincere

Richard
