

Tuesday night

My dear dear dear, Having written to dear Savage I have scarce a moment left to add a few lines to you dear self, but a few for must I shall have; how good you are in so soon having inquired concerning what you promised I have glad I should be to talk it all over with you - I am really much better to day than yesterday was in fact that I could hardly drag my legs after me, indeed on Friday I was very unable after dinner, so from fatigue I am sure I am rather fretted at the letter I received from dear Savage; you do me that justice in saying he did not talk to the wind; believe me I wish to consider nothing from you there, that was thing from others - I have some that hair is literally in D all that part, & a little did I feel inclined to be very serious that I was glad having named the subject to you that Savage'd on the whole, & it is that very moment I of upon - I must not for safe in your kind hand here, though it is against myself but if you are able to come Wednesday if you like on Thursday till day will suit me & at the hour you like best; Wednesday or shall be in town soon after twelve, so if you like coming at two or any other time so - I do not see you I shall be happy - his house
