

Pec. of Hales to R. B. Sheridan

AA. 366

? c Dec. 18 1788
(cf. Hausard)In original collection, but cut during fitting

My dear Sheridan,

Charles has just receiv'd a note from Sir John Sinclair saying y^t. he has just receiv'd a letter from Dempster relative ^{to} how they were to concert the bringing in his amendment to the Address y^t. is to be moved by Sir John, or Sir John's amendment into the Address y^t. Dempster mov'd, neither Charles nor I quite comprehend from Sir John's Note wh. of the two he means. He ends his note by saying y^t. He will call upon Charles any time this Evening y^t. is most agreeable to him. Charles is not well enough to see him, & therefore wishes you immediately to write Him a note saying y^t. He had receiv'd Sir John's note y^t. he was very sorry he neither was well enough to answer His Letter, nor to have y^e. pleasure of seeing him, y^t. therefore you write to him & w^d. have y^e. pleasure of seeing Him any time he w^d. call upon You, or else y^t. You w^d. call upon Him this Evening, as attention & y^e. greatest too is absolutely necessary at the present moment. I am Dear Sheridan,

St. James's Street. Ever sincerely Y^r serv^t of Obedience

W. Pitt