First Report, most humbly submitted to His Majesty by the Supreme Board of Commissioners for the Affairs of the Royal Military College.

Horse Guards, 1st July 1801.

Present,

His Royal Highness the Duke of York, Commander in Chief;

Right Honorable Charles Yorke, Secretary at War;

Honorable General Marcourt, Lieutenant General David Dundas, Quarter Master General;

Lieutenant General Lord Cathcart; and Colonel Calvert,

Adjutant General.

Your Majesty's Warrant, bearing date the 24th June 1801, was read, constituting and appointing Commissioners for the Affairs of the Royal Military College.

In

First Report of Supreme Board of R.M.C.

Enc. to 10284

10275-6

In pursuance of Your Majesty's said Warrant, the Commissioners present, having formed a Supreme Board, proceeded to examine the several Papers and Documents produced to them by Lieutenant Colonel Le Marchant, Superintendant of the Military Institution at High Wycombe; and, having considered the matters before them with the Attention due to the Importance of the objects confided to their Direction, the Supreme Board do now most humbly propose, for Your Majesty's Royal Approbation,

That Lieutenant Colonel Le Marchant be appointed Lieutenant Governor and Superintendant General of the Royal Military College;

That, that part of the Royal Military College, intended to be called the First or Senior Department, be forthwith established, and called into operation; and that General Jarry be appointed the Commandant thereof:

That the Officers, Professors, and Masters, now employed at High Wycombe, be considered as transferred, for the present, to the Establishment of the Royal Military College, and be accordingly authorized to act in their several Capacities, with the Pay and Salaries affixed to their respective Names in the Schedule hereunto annexed.

The Supreme Board do further submit to Your Majesty the expediency of immediately appointing a Treasurer, and a Secretary, for the Affairs of the Royal Military College; and in case Your Majesty shall be pleased to approve thereof, they do most humbly

recommends

Charles Greenwood Esq^r to be the Treasurer, and Lieutenant Colonel M^cKenzie, Assistant Barrack Master General, to be the Secretary.

Your Majesty's Commissioners, in obedience to Your Majesty's Commands expressed in the said Warrant, will next proceed, with all possible diligence, to prepare and submit for Your Majesty's Approbation, and Authority, such Rules and Orders as may be necessary for the Conduct and good Government of the said First Department of the Royal Military College. —

Sir

I have the honor to transmit to Your Majesty the usual Weekly States, together with the Monthly Return of Quarters, from the Quarter Master General, as likewise the Recommendations for Vacant Commissions which have been received this Week for Your Majesty's approbation.

I have little to report to Your Majesty this Week except the Arrival of the 45th Regiment, and of a Detachment of the 70th from the West Indies. Both these Corps are perfect Skeletons, having, as usual, allowed such men as chose to turn out Volunteers to enlist into the Regiments remaining in the West Indies. As there is a very strong Detachment of the 70th in Jersey, I beg leave to recommend that the Part of that Corps returned from the West Indies be ordered there to join it, and that the 45th Regiment which is ordered to recruit Boys be Stationed at Chatham.

I Was rejoiced to hear that Your Majesty had had so pleasant a journey to Luffnalls and that You had been pleas'd with Your stay there, and I trust that Mr. Willmott has a good account of Your Majestys Passage and safe Arrival at Weymouth.

Hill Street, 5th July 1801.

Altho' it appears that a considerable Saving will arise from the new Arrangement, which Your Majesty hath been pleased to command, for the Royal Gardens at Windsor, and for the Queen's Garden in Town, Sir Henry Strachey is apprehensive that the Amount of the Saving will not completely defray the Expence of Your Majesty's Botanic Garden, on Account of the constant Employment of Laborers there, and the necessary Consumption of Coals and Tan, which are always at high Prices. He finds, that the Botanic Garden, upon a fair Average of the last Four Years, has cost Your Majesty £1,070 \textsterling Annum.

Your Majesty will be pleased to determine, whether, in order to reduce the Expence to a Certainty, M^r. Aiton shall have a Contract, for that Sum, to be paid, Nett, in the ordinary Course of the Household Household Establishment, or whether he shall be paid his Bill of Expences, Quarterly, by Disbursements, at the Board of Green Cloth; the Bills being previously examined, and passed, by the Master of Your Majesty's Household.

Sir Henry Strachey, most humbly presumes also, to submit to Your Majesty's Consideration, the short Matter of the enclosed Paper, as he is anxious to forward the Preparation of the Contracts, according to Your Majesty's Instructions of the 30th of May last; and that the whole Arrangement may take place at Michaelmas next, conformably to Your Majesty's most gracious Notes of the 27th of June.

His Majesty's Guards July 9 1801

Sir

I have the Honor to send Your Majesty the usual Weekly and Monthly Returns of the Army both in Great Britain and Ireland together with the Monthly Report of the Irish Medical Board and likewise to lay before Your Majesty for Your Approbation the Recommendations for several Commissions which have been received this Week.

I have also the Honor to report to Your Majesty that in consequence of an account received from the Admiralty that a considerable number of Gun and Flat Bottom'd Boats had escaped out of Harour and were arrived at Boulogne I have thought it necessary to reinforce the Southern District and have therefore ordered the Brigade of Guards to March from Colchester, and to move ultimately to Chatham, from which point they will be ready to support either the Coast of Kent or that of Essex, and to visit the Barracks at Chatham requiring some repairs I am assured that it will be impossible to procure more ground than will be necessary to encamp one Battalion if so I propose to encamp the Light Infantry Battalion and to station the other two Battalions of Guards at Chelmsford till Chatham Barracks are ready for their reception, which arrangement I must still meet with Your Majesty's approbation.

I must also add the arrival of the 55th Regiment from Guernsey, being relieved by the Dutch Corps, the Battalion is ordered to march to Sevens.

I am most sincerely rejoiced to learn from Your Majesty's most gracious Letter that Your Majesty did not suffer from the unpleasant papage which You had from Christ Church to Weymouth and I trust we hope that Your Majesty will Lord St. Vincent felt himself so much embarrassed, by the extraordinary conduct of the Court, that he thought it right to consult the Lord Chancellor, as your Majesty will perceive, by Lord St. Vincent's letter to his Lordship, and his answer thereto, and on a

It seems to be material, and requisite, that the proposed Distribution of the Business of their respective Offices should be notified to Lord Hobart, and Lord Selkirk as soon as the Appointment of the latter has taken Place; and Mr. Addington ventures to submit to your Majesty the Advantage that might arise, if the Commission of your Majesty's Pleasure was made in such a Manner, as to render it a Matter of Precedence, and Record. This would prevent Discussion at present, and all Ambiguity, and Collision in future.

Plans for Establishing a Permanent Charity School

July 1807.

Weymouth July 1801.

It is intended to promote a scheme for the education of poor children by printing and publishing the following Hints for the Establishing a Fund, for a Permanent Charity School.

The number of excellent Charity Schools established in the Metropolis and its Vicinity; and indeed in almost every principal Town in the Kingdom; cannot but strike every rational Observer with admiration.

No one can moralize on the consequences resulting from such Institutions, but must wish them to be established more extensively.

No great Town should be without a Seminary, where the Orphan and friendless Poor of both Sexes might find a shelter from distress: they want a protecting hand that will lead them into the paths of Religion, Virtue, and Industry; by affording them the salutary aid of that system of Education, which bids fair to produce all the benefits, naturally to be expected from the proper cultivation of the mind: under such a guidance, and by a careful attention to their behaviour and conduct, the baneful effects of Vice and Immorality, Sloth and Idleness, will be impeded; and the acquirement of a suitable Education, will render them capable of such attainments in Life, as will make them, at least, useful members of Society; if not capable of filling higher Situations; to the honor of their Country and themselves, and perhaps ultimately to the benefit of the Institution, by a grateful retrospect, to the Origin of their good Fortune.

To arrest the Hand of Poverty in the Infant Offspring of our fellow Creatures, ere it has consigned them to irredeemable misery; to lead them with a fostering care; by affording if possible a home, suitable Clothing, and a proper Education; by which the comforts of Life are obtained, and the seeds of knowledge implanted; and above all to inculcate the true principles of Religion, from which they will learn to do their Duty in this Life, and secure to themselves eternal rewards in a future State—

10322-3

This will not only be a prop to Youth, but a comfort to the Aged. The dying Sailor or Soldier bleeding in his Country's Cause; may receive consolation in his last Moments, in knowing there is an Asylum for the Fatherless Child of Sorrow: and the Unfortunate of every Class, may anticipate for their Children and Descendants that reasonable Bounty of a generous Public, which has never been extended to themselves. — Under such impressions, and from such motives, it is to be hoped, there will not be wanting a numerous support, to countenance a Plan, that has for its object so much good. —

In the Commencement of such an Undertaking, many difficulties will arise: yet Time and Perseverance may subdue them all. — Therefore it is necessary to draw, as into one focus, the different means of support that now present themselves; and with that Aid, to make a Beginning, not doubting, but the End will be crowned with Success; and relying on that Protecting Power, who stimulates the Good, to generous Deeds; and who blesses Tenfold those Acts, which spring from a charitable Heart. —

Benefactions for Establishing a Fund; or Communications of intended Benefactions, will be received at the Bank and Libraries; and in maturity of time, a Committee will be formed, and Plans entered into: agreeable to the means furnished; which may be enlarged as the Fund shall increase.

The intention is, tho it may begin, with merely the Educating a few Children; yet, when the means will admit, that a House shall be purchased, and proper Persons appointed for Educating the Children, and conducting the Establishment, with suitable Salaries; and that from the list of subscribers, Governors will be chosen, and Trustees appointed; and that General and other Meetings be established.

The smallest Donations to be received.

Some Regulations, on the following, or similar Plan are suggested; that the liberally disposed, may have an Interest in the Establishment.

A Subscription of £1.1.0 per Annum, to constitute the Subscriber, whether Lady or Gentleman, a Governor.

And a Donation of £20.0.0 - a Governor for Life, who shall be intitled to have one Child in the School at one time of £50.0.0 ----- Two Children.

of £100.0.0 and upwards - Three Children.

Each Governor to have a Vote at all Elections for Appointments to the Charity.

It is intended to follow up the present opening of the Plan, with a more digested and particular Scheme, as soon as a sufficient number of Patrons have appeared to support it, who may meet for that purpose.

that in consequence of a conversation which I have had this morning with Mr Addington in which he informed of the great probability of some ^{immediate} attempt being intended to be made by the French upon the coasts of this Kingdom, and particularly upon those of Essex and Kent, I have thought it necessary to take every precaution to concentrate as much as possible the Force in the Southern and Eastern Districts, and have therefore ordered the Corps of Home Artillery which has been detached to Margate to return immediately to Colchester, as well as the 15th Light Dragoons to approach London and shall hold in readiness two Battalions of Guards to march for London

London Mr Addison has likewise agreed with me in the Expediency of moving the French Prisoners from Portsmouth and Plymouth into the Interior of the Country, and as there are ^{no} unoccupied Buildings to be found in Situations proper to place them in General Delaney has proposed to prepare a piece of Ground upon Salisbury Plain, strongly fortified either that they can be encamped, as a temporary

I take the opportunity of reporting to Your Majesty the death of General Mordaunt, who died on Saturday last, by which will the 9th Light Dragoons be become vacant, and by leave to His Majesty to find Majesty that Sir James McClair is the Senior Major General of Cavalry without a Regiment.

I had intended to have paid my duty received of the Enemy's Intentions I am obliged I shall be under the necessity of postponing that till we can judge more clearly what

Lord Hawkesbury has the Honour to inform Your Majesty, that Count Woronzow has received his Letter of Credence, as Ambassador and is desirous of presenting it to your Majesty, at any time which you may be graciously pleased to appoint. Lord Hawkesbury can perceive from Count Woronzow's Manner, that he is desirous of going down to Plymouth for that purpose. As he has ^{been} so very instrumental in settling the Differences which had unfortunately arisen between between Your Majesty and the Russian Government, and as he is so warm a Friend to this Country, Your Majesty will perhaps be pleased to indulge him

Lord Hawkebury expects to receive the answer of the French Government to the last Note of Your Majesty's Government, the beginning of next Week he hopes that he should then be able without

Ld. Hobart presents his humble Duty to your Majesty and submits to your Majesty several Drafts of Instructions which have been prepared for Lieutenant General Fox, Lieutenant General Sir John Hutchinson and Major General Pigot - Lieutenant General Fox is now the Senior Officer upon the Staff serving in the Mediterranean, and from the Extent and Importance of the Duties proposed to be confided to him, Lord Hobart would humbly submit to your Majesty, that Lieutenant General Fox should have the Commission of Commander in Chief in the Mediterranean — and in the event of your Majesty's approving of Lord Hobart's suggestion to that effect, a Commission is sent for your Majesty's signature, which it is propos'd to transmit with the accompanying Instructions by a Sloop of War now under orders for the Mediterranean —

The consequences that would inevitably result from the French obtaining possession of the Island of Sicily would appear too obvious for Lord Hobart to take up your Majesty's time with many observations respecting the Provisional Instructions upon that subject - To secure a retreat for the King of the two Sicilies, to strengthen the situation of your Majesty's troops upon the Island of Malta, and eventually to facilitate military operations in the South of Italy are the principal grounds upon which your Majesty's Confidential Servants have considered in their Duty to recommend ^{that} the proposed instruction re-to your Majesty -

Lord Hobart has also to present his humble Duty to your Majesty, and to transmit a Private Letter from Lieut

Lord St. Vincent has the honor of acquainting your Majesty, that on a consideration of the measures necessary to be taken for the defence of the Coast, and guarding against any attempts, which may be meditated by the Enemy, for forcing the passage of the Thames, or effecting any landing, on the Coasts of Sussex, Kent, and Essex, it has occur'd to him, that it will be of advantage to your Majesty's Service, to employ Vice Admiral Lord Viscount Nelson in the command of all the Ships of War, Gun Vessels, and Craft, intended to be employ'd on that particular Service, limiting the extent of his command from Beachy Head to Oxford. Lord St. Vincent has no idea of interfering with the command in the Downs and at the now, now held by Admiral Lutwidge, and Vice Admiral Gaemes, but to leave them in the exercise, of what is generally considered, the Port Duty.

As the Mary yacht is in all respects ready to receive men, and may be of use in the River during the absence of the Princess Augusta, Lord St. Vincent humbly recommends, that she may be put into Commission, and if your Majesty should not have any particular wishes in respect to the choice of an officer, to command her, he begs permission to submit to your Majesty, whether it may not be proper to appoint Sir Thomas Boulder Thompson, late Captain of the Bellona, who lost his leg off Copenhagen, to the yacht.

If your Majesty shall be pleased to approve of the measures, Lord St. Vincent has taken the liberty to propose, he will, immediately, on receiving your Majesty's Commands, carry them into execution, and direct the Draft of the Instructions to Viscount Nelson, to be sent to your Majesty, when it shall be completed.

Lord St. Vincent takes this occasion to mention to your Majesty, that no account, either public or private has reached him of the capture of the Hannibal, excepting through the medium of the French Papers: Lord St. Vincent is unable to form any opinion of the extent of the injury, the Squadron may have received, from that hazardous undertaking; but in order to give every consistent support to Sir James Saumarez, and to enable him, if possible, to preserve his Station before Cadix, has directed him to be reinforced with four Ships of the line - The Ships intended to form that Detachment are to be selected out of the six seventy four Gun Ships, which late left the Ballee, and proceeded round the north of Ireland, to Cork, from whence, or off Cape Clear if they should be met with there, they will be dispatched.

Lord St. Vincent is very happy to learn that the Royal Charlotte and Princess Auguste's Yachts answer your Majesty's expectation a great deal depends on the good management of their Commanders

My Dear Lord -

Many thanks for your last confidential communication, which I received with great pleasure, and shall certainly not transpire from me. I do most sincerely believe that The King is one of the most right-headed men in his own Dominion, and in this instance he has certainly binced it strongly in not yielding to the recommendation of Doctor Cleaver. Who must appear to have more accustomed to his Masters and disobeying temper, most eminently dis-qualified for the Situation to which he is appointed. I find they have softened our little friend Caspel, and I am he will take care that he has full equivalents for his acquiescence in the promotion of any other man. What a blessing is it that we have succeeded so well in abolishing that system of universal jobbing and cabal to which our Government in this Country has been so long forced to bend, and certainly there is no more perfect master of the Art than the Apostolic little Pretate. I mean to go down to Mount. Shannon for the Summer, the day after the prorogation of our Parliament which will take place on the 2^d of August.

It is my intention to go to Bath for a month at Christmas, and not to think of remaining in England after the first day of the ensuing term, unless I am ordered so to do. And whenever you can ascertain whether my attendance will be required at London in the course of the next Winter, I shall thank you to let me know it, that I may arrange my Affairs here accordingly. I feel that I shall be of much more Use at home.

than I can possibly be elsewhere - Our friend Castle ton has very foolishly resigned his office of Chief Justice. He set his own ~~Altogether~~ his own hand a foolish impression that his health suffered by the labours of his Court. I feel amused at losing him as a Judge, and much more amused at the apprehension that he will be succeeded by Toles, but I have reason to think that the late political struggle has made this visitation upon the People of Ireland almost inevitable. I well remember your having expressed more than once your astonishment at the consideration into which this Gentleman has forced himself, and if you had the same opportunity of knowing him that I have, you would be still more astonished.
We never hear of Union now, and you may be quite assured that there is no possible chance of permanent discontent at the measure.
I am much obliged to you for lending me a good copy of the Anti-Jacobin No. 6. If you see Wright desire him to let me know when they are published, that I may desire a Messenger to call upon him for my copy - I feel at home

Yours always very truly

Lord Chatham, is still so unwell, as to be under the necessity of intreating Your Majesty's indulgence, to excuse his not being present, at the Council to be held at Weymouth, on Thursday next, and at which he understands, that it is Your Majesty's intention to declare The Duke of Portland, to be Lord President. - Lord Chatham can not suffer this event to take place, without feeling an anxiety, to be allowed to offer his humble acknowledgements, for all Your Majesty's goodness to him, as well as to renew the assurances of his dutiful and affectionate attachment to Your Majesty. — Lord Chatham, has, too deeply imprinted on his mind, the recollection of those expressions of approbation and kindness, with which Your Majesty, was pleased to honor him, when you bestowed on him the Presidency, of the Council, not to indulge the earnest hope, that he may be permitted to consider the important trust, to which Your Majesty, has been recently pleased to call him, as a mark, of the continuance of the same gracious Sentiments, and which it will be ever, Lord Chatham's first ambition to retain. —

Lord Chatham will only beg, to express further on Your Majesty, to express the sincere happiness, the state of publick business, and preparation, have as yet

Lord St. Vincent has the satisfaction of transmitting to your Majesty a Letter he has received from Admiral Cornwallis giving an account of a very distinguished service performed by the Boats of some of the Ships employed off Baco, in which he thinks as much valour has been shown as has appeared in any instance that has occurred during the present War. Lord St. Vincent is not exactly informed of all the circumstances which took place in the performance of this service, but will take care to concert with Admiral Cornwallis the means of noticing in a proper manner the gallant conduct of the Persons, who best deserve it.

Lord St. Vincent takes this occasion of acquainting your Majesty, that learning by the French Newspapers and other Channels, of the capture of the Swiftsure, and of the operations making at Cadiz, he thought it his duty to propose to some of your Majesty's confidential servants, the sending a considerable force off Cadiz instead of the detachment of four ships of the line, directed to proceed from the coast of Ireland, in which they most readily concurred.
If your Majesty should be pleased to approve of his so doing, he humbly begs leave to propose to your Majesty, that Vice Admiral Boscawen

Lord Nelson will report to Your Majesty the Substance of a Conference which was held yesterday at Mr Addingtons, at which it was determined to propose to Your Majesty to call out immediately the Supplementary Militia as likewise to order all Half pay Officers to send us their names to the Generals of their Districts they reside, in order that they may be employed in case of Invasion, under pain of having their Half pay suspended if they do not obey the Order within one Month, and also to publish an Edict to all those who have returned from Your Majesty's Service, as who have served in the Province of Madagasc, or in the India Company's Service, to come forward at this moment and offer their Services.

It was likewise determined that immediate Steps should be taken to remove the French Prisoners to the Isle of Candy in the Bristol Channel, which by a report I have I have received from Lieutenant General Delancy, will enable to make fit to contain almost any number of Prisoners, and by being three Leagues in the Sea, with a very small Water Course to prevent Boats Landing in two small Creeks, and a Watch properly fortified to command the principal Landing
