London March 22th 1771.

Sir

I think myself highly Honoured by the letter Your Majesty has deigned to write to me and as You Sir are pleased to overrule my Plea of insufficiency my scruples shall vanish and nothing shall appear before Your Majesty but the zeal and alacrity that becomes a dutifull Servant.

I have passed great part of this morning morning with the Archbishop of York, from whose wisdom I hope for great assistance in my arduous undertaking, I am to see him again tomorrow, and on Thursday shall have the honour to lay before Your Majesty the result of our deliberations.

I have the honour to be with the most profound respect

Sir

Your Majesty's
most loyal subject, most faithfully devoted
servant
