Dear Sir, The terrible accounts I have received of the continuance of the dear Duke of Gloucester's illness makes me intend to come this Evening to Town that I may be ready to give My Mother that attendance which his cruel stroke must make necessary. I desire you will be at the Queen's House at eight this Evening that I may have some conversation with you on the other terrible affairs the two are most too much for me.

Faint, illegible handwriting in a cursive script, possibly a letter or document, written on aged paper. The text is mirrored across the page, suggesting a watermark or bleed-through from the reverse side. The script is dense and fills most of the upper half of the page.
