

A. N. to Don. Peers. of Habs

Madam

I saw about 10 o'clock after I left you last night, and in the morning I was convinced him that at no time I could change my count of not receiving Mr. Hortos that therefore the D. of Cumberland's declaration must be explicit and under his hand that he will never publicly acknowledge it, nor ever name this detestable affair to any body. I added that you thought it more likely if Deaken could persuade him not to return for some time that he is not to be convinced that the only alternative he can make to his taking is the above declaration; that then England will be the most improper place he can reside in, and even Scotland the least objectionable. This requires no answer but I thought it but right not to delay acquainting you with what has passed till I saw you on the evening, I remain Sir

Lucas
