

Draft to the D. of Gloucester
Lucen's House June 9th 1780.

16191

Dear Brother, Your very proper behaviour on the present Occasion cannot but treat me with any other opinion than that of giving way to the sentiments of cordial Affection, I have ever had for you, and as such assuring you that I shall receive you with pleasure ~~where~~ ever it shall be agreeable to you to come here; I expect the Body Council at eight I therefore hope you will come sooner or later that I may not put you to any inconvenience. I ever remain &c.
