Wednesday Morning

1/2 past 11. o'clock.

The Lord Chancellor owes his most humble Duty to your Majesty: he has had the Honour of seeing the Prince of Wales this Morning, and, at his Royal Highness's Request, he forwards to your Majesty the inclosed Note, which he should have thought it his Duty, both to your Majesty, and to his Royal Highness, to have personally brought down to Lew, if it had been possible for him to extricate himself from the Engagements of the Day. The Chancellor will have Pleasure to trouble your Majesty with a Note by this Night's Post-poner.
