Mr Percival

L Palmerston.

Apr. 15 1811

Mr Percival presents his humble duty to Your Royal Highness, and understanding from Lord Liverpool, that Your Royal Highness had enquired of his Lordship whether Mr Percival had yet received Lord Palmerston's observations upon the Representation of the Commander in Chief relative to the Office of Secretary at War.
Mr Percival takes the liberty of troubling Your Royal Highness to state that Lord Palmerston has not yet delivered his observations to Mr Percival; that his Lordship attends
His Royal Highness
The Dinner Present - at

at Cambridge, and his enjoyment of his studies prevented for some time his absence to this subject.
Mr Brevint mentioned to his Lordship the other day, and had hoped to have heard from him before this time; but the death of a near relation has called his Lordship to Bath for a few days, and when his Lordship returns <sup>Mr Brevint</sup> has no doubt he will soon be furnished with his Lordship's observations.

Yours. R
