

Sir Gore Buseley to Col. McKeaton

19444-5

private

Perman March 20. 1812

My dear Sir

His Royal Highness the Prince Regent's situation having so materially altered since I received his commands to address him, I am fearful of taking a liberty contrary to etiquette and therefore avail myself of your friendly assistance to request that in presenting the accompanying letter to His Royal Highness you will have the goodness to make every Colonel McKeaton apology you may think necessary on my part for any unintentional error I may have been guilty of.

St Gore Buseley to Col. McKeehan

May I further trouble you to inform His Royal Highness that I conceive affairs of all kinds will be sufficiently well arranged here to admit of my returning to England about the close of 1814, previous to which period should I be honored with H. R. Highness's commands I shall be most proud to execute his orders -

19445

Shawls, brocades & armour are the only things worth having here, unless the Prince Regent would wish to possess a few beautiful Persian M.S.S. or paintings -

Believe me, with respect and regard,

Very faithfully yours
Gore Buseley

20 March 1872

Sir Gore Ouseley

[Faint, illegible handwritten text, likely bleed-through from the reverse side of the paper.]