Sir

The very feeling manner in which you interested yourself for my welfare induces me to take the liberty of informing you of the result of my application for my relief, being informed by my kind friend Mr. Taylor how very handsomely and gentlemanly you interested yourself about my concerns by laying my Petition before Lord Liverpool, and feeling anxious that something speedily should be arranged for the relief of my Wife and Daughter (my life being very uncertain) I addressed Lord Liverpool, a copy of the letter I enclose for your inspection as well as his answer, which has caused me much uneasiness and distress as it leaves me no hope,

Yours,

following
letters

-had he permitted us to trust to any alleviation it would have been some consolation. - but as it is I feel it almost too much to bear - perhaps another Petition to His Royal Highness the Prince Regent would be considered as presumptuous - in short I know not how to act, and I rely upon your goodness to pardon the liberty I take if I ask your advice upon the subject. I beg leave to subscribe myself
Sir

Your obliged humble servant
Edwin
