Dear Sir

I received yesterday your copy of a private & circular communication, addressed to me Officially, with the intimation of His Majesty's gracious intention to visit the Capital of Ireland, and am exceedingly sensible of his goodness in that early intimation of his intention to do so—

I might have avoided from my time of life the Parliamentary attendance of last winter, had I been so disposed, but I thought it my duty to do otherwise, & I look forward with that satisfaction to this new journey, with which I always obey His Majesty's

Commands.

I remain very truly,

Dear Sir,

Your faithful servant,

James Hertford

Chamberlain

Manchester Square

30th May 1821.

The Right Hon^{ble}

Sir B. Bloomfield
