

My dear Lord Liverpool,

I have invited Lord & Lady Bathurst & Lord & Lady Melville, to dine with me here on Saturday, go to church & dine with me on Sunday, & on Monday to release them all. If you will join. too, & do the same it will give me great pleasure. I have named Saturday & Sunday for this purpose because I know, that there are the only days that you can possibly spare, with any convenience to the public business.
I have in truth my dear Lord, many ~~other~~ things of a private & painful nature per-sonal to myself that I require to talk over with you, as my friend; & this oppor-tunity must therefore be very agreeable to me.

I hardly know what to say to you, respecting my health; for two or three days, I felt so very unwell, that I began to apprehend that, that, which is slowly giving way was coming upon me suddenly, but I feel now somewhat relieved; I write this however confidentially only to yourself.
Believe me, with great truth,

Your sincere friend.

The King to Lord
Liverpool

(Private Dinner & Conversation)

1822.