Lord Cromwelly, Lord Talbot, & Lord Coventry were not adverse to Lord Sandwich's Motion, and only spoke on Matter of order. nobody spoke against the Motions, or seem'd desirous of protecting Mr Wilkes, but Lord Temple, the Duke of Grafton expressed himself an Enemy to the Authors of Libels, and desir'd to lay in his Protest against being consider'd as desirous of protecting them. — Lord Sandwich went thro' the Charge, and the Examination of Witnesses with great Spirit and Ability — and Lord Hillsborough and Lord Suffolk mov'd and seconded the Motion for an Address to his Majesty extremely well —

Lord Halifax being at Dinner has not read the Irish Letters, but cannot conceive that any other Measures, but those of Spirit are consistent with the Dignity of his Majesty's Government.
