

C. J. Fox to B. R. H.

38091

Sir

I am so much fatigued with yesterday's exertion and am so much afraid of increasing my disorder with cold that I shall consider it as an addition to the many favours your Royal Highness has conferred upon me, if my paying my duty to day at Carleton House can be excused. I hope in the course of the day to have opportunities of conversing with our principal friends and to suggest to your Royal Highness the best plan we are able in this untoward state of affairs I conceive this House of Commons is much worse than I thought it, but our cause is such that sooner or later we must succeed.

I am with the greatest gratitude
Sir, your Obedt^h Serv^t
