

A.R.A. to Mr. Hertford.

Feb. 6 1795

39029 - 30

6 Feb 1795

My dear Lord,

I am just returned home and found with your letter which I should be at a loss to comprehend were I not convinced that you have been misinformed as to the arrangements I have found it expedient ~~to make~~ to make in my family, which was precisely the reverse. An additional of the Bed Chamber becoming absolutely necessary in consequence of the increasing attendance

30022 30

will be requisite I have said Lord St. John Seymour to that situation, conceiving that no one on every account could be more proper than himself to fill that office, which is ^{quite as} ~~equally~~ compatible with the rest of the Board of Admiralty intended for him by His Majesty's Ministers, as the Post of Privy Counsellor & Master of the Robes from which he is now advanced to the being a Lord of the Bed Chamber.

I am with great truth, my dear Lord Carlton &c. Very sincerely
Your obedient servant
Feb. 6. 1755. George.

A.R.A. to Ld. Hertford.

Feb. 6 1795

39030

Dear Madam I beg to say that the furniture will proceed to the Duke of Devonshire Street Mill. when is collected an additional room of the Bed Chamber.
I beg to say that for every very thing that is to be sent from me to Lady Hertford.

00000

[Faint, illegible cursive handwriting on aged paper]