Sir

The delicacy of Your Royal Highness's Honour, in not wishing to leave a possibility for His Majesty's being received in any expectation, is every way worthy of you. If in the present moment you carry your sensibility to any unnecessary extent, it is not to be wondered at after the usual invitation which you have suffered from the Press - Papers. Your Royal Highness, however, I am persuaded will have found that the King's wishes did not go beyond your own liberal & fair intentions, as His Majesty has throughout made the most just discrimination between what was requisite towards the public & what ought to result from private feelings alone. Trusting that the apuat the mind of your Royal Highness at same day before you receive this letter, I have only add the language of that day with which I remain ever your Royal Highness's most obliged affectionate & respectful servant
