London. Feb: 22 .1794.

Sir,

Having received information some time since which is daily confirmed, that the Idea of sending more money from this Country to the Emperor, had made People begin to hoard Cash, I have thought it my duty to take care that your Royal Highness should be put to no inconvenience on this head; & have therefore directed the frs Hammerby's to provide 3000 ls. for your Royal Highness age. Should your Royal Highness have no immediate occasion for them, they can remain in Messrs. H's hands.

A French General Officer (Eustache) I believe, has remained undiscovered in London for above a fortnight & was only sent out under the alias Bick on Monday last - when he received the Duke of Portland's letter, he is supposed to have expressed himself very vindictively against this Country.

On your Royal Highness's return to Down, I shall be able to acquaint you of the exact position of things - J^r J. Sinclair had has a long conversation with Lord Thoiras, & they both agree some kind of Interposition is become indispensably necessary.

I sincerely hope you have enjoyed yourself during your excursion, & remain, Sir,

Your very faithful servant

Thos. Tyrwhitt.
