Sir I was very sorry that my being from home prevented me from having the pleasure of seeing you yesterday when you did me the honour to call.

I return you Lord Moira's letter with many thanks for the communication His conduct appears to have been, what I never doubted but it would be, honourable and judicious. I had as little doubt of his good wishes to, and favourable opinion of me. I have long had a great esteem for him and I know that sentiments of this nature are [though not quite so certain] as those of a different kind of usually reciprocal.

I am with great regard,

Sir,

your most obed^t serv^t.
