Sir

Notwithstanding that it has been intimated to me by a Gentleman known to you that you take a pleasure in rendering Services to those bearing up with Calamities, it is with the utmost deference and Respect, I presume to enclose a detail of the disaster under which I labor begging through your means that it may be submitted to his Royal Highness the Prince of Wales whose Generous Heart is ever so open to relieve — Trusting that I shall ever consider myself indebted for your kindness, and never prove undeserving of, or ungrateful for the now solicited donation from so exalted a character as his Royal Highness for whose happiness, I shall ever pray

I remain

Sir, With the utmost deference and Respect

Your devoted Servant
