St James's March 13. 1781
Midnight.

The D<sup>ts</sup> now submitted to your Majesty has been read to the Cabinet and entirely approved.
If it meets with your Majesty's approbation it will be sent off tomorrow evening together with another letter or two the D<sup>ts</sup> of which I shall prepare as fast as possible. I have endeavour'd to do justice to your Majesty's sentiments upon this important subject, and have had the advantage of writing from the clearest conviction of my mind and the warmest and strongest feelings of my throat.
