

Ld. Eldon to H.R.H. [Dec. 13 1810]

41487_8

The Lord Chancellor, offering his Duty to your Royal Highness, takes Leave to mention that he went to London yesterday for the purpose of making personal Enquiry respecting his Majesty's health, and without the hope, or the Intention of seeing his Majesty. Having, however, at the request, & by the Advice of the Physicians, been introduced to His Majesty, he thinks it his Duty to inform your Royal

Ld. Eldon to H.R.H. [Dec. 13 1810]

41488

Highness that in an Interview, about he had with the King, alone, for about twenty Minutes, he had the Satisfaction of finding ^{him} in bodily health (as it appeared to the Chancellor) well, and he thinks he may, with the greatest Truth, add, very greatly improved in his mental Indisposition, tho' as yet, not to the extent of rendering some proceeding in Parliament unnecessary, where he apprehends an Examination of the Physicians will probably be ended to day, unless Mr.

Ld. Eldon to H.R.H. [Dec. 13 1810]

41488

Highness that in an Interview, about
he had with the King, alone, for
about twenty Minutes, he had the Satisfaction of finding ^{him} in bodily health (as it appeared to the Chancellor)
well, and he thinks he may, with
the greatest Truth, add, very greatly
improved in his mental Indisposi-
tion, tho' as yet, not to the extent of rendering some proceeding in Parliament unnecessary, where he
apprehends an Examination of the Physicians will probably be
ended to day, unless Mr.

Several finds his Majesty to day more amended, than the Chancellor can venture to hope he will find him.

The Chancellor presumes that it will be satisfactory to your Royal Highness to learn that his Majesty dwelt, with great Pleasure, upon the Circumstances, which took Place between him & your Royal Highness on the day of his Confinement, which he related to the Lord Chancellor exactly as he had learnt them from your Royal Highness.