

M. J. Stuart to Col. MacMahon
1810.

41552

Sir,

Inclosed I have the honour to return you the address, which I have inserted in the M. P. and O. of to-day, and it will be in the chief evenings and tonight, and the Mornings of to-morrow. You will see other articles in the M. P. and O. of to-day, which I hope will please.

Be assured that I shall be unremitting in all my exertions, and I have no doubt of success. You and your friends, I hope, perceive that I have at least stemmed the tide of calumny greatly, and I am confident that I shall soon do more. In all this business, it is a great happiness to me to have been introduced to a gentleman of your zeal for His Royal Highness's service. Your many hints, and particular attention to his fame, by advising me, has enabled me to do several good things of great utility to the cause. Would to heaven he had had always such fidelity and zeal surrounding his person as you. He would not then have been calumniated by those very people who have so well thriven by his bounty.

Sir, I have the honour to remain
Your obliged

Tues. Morn.

and very faithful Mumble Servant,
E. Stuart.
