St James Oct 30. 1791.

Lord Stourmont to the King as there is nothing so pleasing to foreign Ministers in trying situations as to receive your Majesty's approbation of their conduct, I have been liberal in commendation of <sup>St</sup> James <sup>Harris</sup> Harris, it appearing to me that he has acted with uncommon spirit and ability in a very hazardous moment indeed. I may perhaps <sup>overthink</sup> overthink the subject, but it strikes me that <sup>Court</sup> Court <sup>Panin</sup> Panin meant to throw a <sup>die</sup> die for the whole, and that if the Great Duke's Journey had been put off to a long day a Revolution would have been attempted. Such a Revolution would have rivetted the King of

King of Prussia's Influence at Petersburg and made him in fact Sovereign of the Empire of Russia
