

March 16th 1702

M^r. Robinson

to C. Tenkenson

4508

My D^r Sir

In order that you may judge a little of the State of Things, which I am very sorry to say I see very bad, I send you the enclosed Sketch of the House last Night, drawn out hastily this Morning until I can go thro' the whole more correctly — The Rats were very bad, I fear they will increase before Wednesday, when Mr Fox has given Notice they will again attack — I shall get down to the Treasury as fast as possible & I will then contrive to see you some how or other as soon I any way can — I am ever Altho' in very great haste Yours ever most Faithfully
Saturday Morning John Robinson

[Faint, illegible handwritten text on aged paper]