Post Private 45232

Becky Mason,

and Confidential.

June 25: 1830.

Dear Sir,

Yours Post-Private and

"Confidential" of this day has reached me. I really have not much to say. I trust the King does not suffer. But I am afraid the progress of His Majesty must be more painful every day and the state of our heland excellent I am sure he becomes more interesting by taking away some thing of the energy still left in the King's marvellous constitution. But these drains on the gigantic power of His Majesty must have an end and our dear most excellent Sovereign cannot be spared to us much longer.

I shall be tomorrow at Windsor a little before one and can assure you I admire your conduct thro' this -tough and arduous case. I justly appreciate your medical skill and your devoted and never fail-ing attention and devoted and affectionate regard for the thing.

Ever sincerely yours,

Dear Sir,

Yours truly
