Saturday Morning 11 o'clock

Sir,

I had the honor yesterday evening to receive your Royal Highness's communication of the Lord Chancellor's letter, and your direction that I should consider whether any & what sort of answer ought to be returned.

My humble opinion is that, under all the circumstances of the case, your Royal Highness ought not to make any reply to, or enter into any discussion with the Chancellor. Indeed I must again presume to repeat that, for the present, I see no step which can be taken with advantage. It seems to me as if every thing which was consistent with your Royal Highness's dignity and superior sense, had been done, and my respectful advice would be to wait with calmness until some new Event should require your Interference.

In the mean time your Royal Highness may be assured that any Information which may come to my knowledge shall be communicated without delay, and that I shall zealously endeavour to give effect to such commands as your Royal Highness may be pleased to issue me with, as the only proof in my power to offer of the gratitude & attachment with which I am

Sir
