I received a few minutes ago by the Post my ever dearest Mother's kind Letter, for which I can not enough express my gratitude; I understand most perfectly your being so good as to send me Miss Goldworthy, till the return of my Sister from Plymouth; I can not sufficiently express how sensible I am of this great proof of Attachment on her part to our Family by relinquishing her own amusements & <sup>situation which</sup> amusements to take upon her, that I am certain I could not have found another so obligingly that was fit for ~~the present moment~~ at the present moment. I write to Miss Goldsmith, to Lady Dashwood, & to Lord Chelmsford by the same occasion, in order that every thing may be perfectly understood, <sup>but</sup> ~~from~~ the feeling which I trust you will approve of my dearest Mother, & that Miss Goldsmith may find every thing as little uncomfortable as possible. I will not plague you with a long letter at the present moment, or with the repetition of those feelings of ardent attachment to you which you have been so long acquainted with which can only cease with my last breath

As you then ever desire & best of Mothers, I wish you much amusement & happiness till such time as I can have the happiness of joining your party.

Your ever affectionate
Daughter
