My dear Aunt,

As the Post is this instant going out I have only time just to acknowledge the receipt of your kind letter, & to desire that you will use your own discretion about the staying any longer at Wick longer; you have done most perfectly right respecting Christie's house at Blackheath, & am in great hopes you may get it. Do not forget to write either to Strick or to Satchwell at the Grange in time ^{before I go} you intend the making it your half way house. You delight me with the good accounts of the dear child as well as of the rest

The family, and as the P. M. is actually waiting at the door for my letter, I am my dear

Countess,

Your very sincere friend

Brighton.
