My dearest Brother

The King has passed a perfect quiet composed day & any appearance of irritation is over for the present.

I am glad to the least you have had so much anxiety and worry on the subject of Miss Knight but I hope to find out nothing of the Queen's most unaccountable affairs tomorrow. We may still see Miss Knight in the situation of all others may well rather of your ought to know the Queen to be in — I was sure by what the Queen told me, she had wrote a very unpleasant letter to Duys Knight & after learning promised you & the ops of Leeds own & one again she would let Brax see it is the more wonderful the L has expressed himself in in all these businesses — but really will hear her reason — her rage is so great at Duys Knight having refused at first to accept after — When your letter came that coming public by the by the Queen showed me

^{she} ~~had~~ let me read Miss Knight's letter to her mother & her own and was to your letter and of course I said all I could to try & convince her of Miss Knight's attachment to her & that by accepting the situation which your Daughter was the strongest proof she could give of her & Duty & that when she considered the dreadful situation you was placed in & all your difficulties it was hard to put any in the way of her placing a proper & permanent settlement of her letter as Miss Knight

I wish it were your duty to try to get proper people for your Daughter & her Honor as you I would equally justify to leave her acquaintance & content to assist you & the Reverend Bishop Knight friend of she did not care for words & accept the Queen would be flamed in the world as they would say she would not give her up - I felt certain that when at once decided her to take it - & therefore the Queen was her first object Instead after some backward & forward she allowed her

To soften some expressions in the letter to you, for though it is written out of temper I assure you it is my much less intended. Hence she finds intended & she is so you come round as to feel alarmed for you she should not accept — Therefore I trust perhaps may per make her — I think the letter to perhaps does her the greatest possible honour for she never could return to the Queen after such a letter & such a conduct, but as the I says she confers had miss may talk her over miss may talk her letter take it — and if she could make up her mind to old work and look for a little time I should hope for you

with your usual kind support miss may of may all these one — I had a comfortable conversation with the Dr of seeds this morning when express my will satisfied with two letters & was them can high sent at the thoughts of her thoughts remaining accepted & that told Charlotte of it who was all joy - I send sincerely hope the Dr & Charlotte may never hear of all that has passed since as I do not make the I appear unnecessary -

Yours truly
Wm

It is of course unnecessary to say that I should accept because the Duke told me fairly that this summer she could not go for many days longer
with out aparture
