[July 22 1813]

My Dear Sister -

I received your letter this morn.

I do not know what answer to require or immediate answer, yet I cannot help saying that I feel at least happy in not having given you offence by making known my request; at the same time that you really do my feelings justice in distributing their letters to their true source, there of you wish to do to the best of my power, what I think can be by your desire - I am equally persuaded of their being neither urgent nor sufficient to do not want my going to the sea side. I do not wish to see you in not refusing what can be with propriety presented, & that that no more of a letter about it I beg you to peruse me

Dear Madam

Yours affly

Dutiful Child
