My dear Mother

I return you my best thanks for your letter which I received last night, & which I fear has laid some about my health. I am afraid I have been, & shall continue being very weak in following all the many prescriptions in which I am sure I think he will agree - I am so desirous to be well with a few more weeks, but I cannot say that I expect any relief from the physic & that I do not feel better today than when the secret went to Mr. G. yesterday. I added to which the change of weather has been fine. I have cold in my head. I will flatter myself with the hope of seeing you shortly if you can return from your tour. I wish the letter for it reaching me. My dear Mother

Ever Affly
Your affectionate
Daughter
