My dear Mr Pitt

It is quite impossible for me not to follow the first impulse of my own feelings, in writing immediately to thank you for the very free & unreserved communication you have made to me. Through the short time since I arrived at home I feel indebted for the delicate manner in which you have treated upon this interesting & painful subject. Had I known of this I may be to us be the it is too important any longer to me unless return it & therefore I am the more desirous that some immediate communication should be the place between us if possible in a personal interview if that cannot be, by letter direct by some yourself, & retaining the particular that requires as I feel the importance, that I am still more interested in this business than yourself. I should wish to be informed as to the time which anything can be done about it, if so, what steps should be adopted, either by letter or otherwise.

I am to be happy & being near the other day of the to say in absence, & being met with such affection, that I feel'd every thing she had to say a request I had intended to have made personally, namely, that you would allow my friend Miss Howard (whom I have in your way to be better) to pay me a visit here - I would be glad to receive her here for the story, but she is so busy that it is a long piece since I have seen her, & that the spirit of former pleasure days, would incline me, did I remember to my comfort & pleasure perhaps me

 My dear Mother
 With every affection I

Dear Sir

Yours very affly
